DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on January 29, 2004 has been entered.

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. How dry is "substantial dryness"?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

5. Claims 1-5, 17-19, 24, 25 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Severns et al., US 5,668,102. The reference discloses liquid fabric softeners with improved perfume longevity (abstract). These are used in the rinse cycle of a conventional laundry process (col. 31, lines 61+). Suitable carrier liquids for the softening compositions include glycol ethers (col. 20, line 40). The reference does not disclose all of the steps recited in the claims with sufficient specificity to constitute anticipation. However, it would have been obvious at the time that the invention was made to carry out such a process since home laundry processes are typically conducted in a laundering appliance with water as the predominant fluid in the presence of a surfactant. The wash water is then removed, and the garments are rinsed. The rinse may be conducted in the presence of a perfumed fabric softener containing glycol ether, as disclosed in the reference. This is commonly done (in the examiner's household, for decades) without presorting, and with a variety of fabric types and colors present. Non-nonionic surfactants are notoriously common in the laundering art.

6. Claims 1-5, 17-19, 24, 25 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over GB 1,549,180. The reference discloses softening compositions used in the final rinse cycle of a laundering process (p. 1, lines 7-9). These comprise one of the quats disclosed in the middle of p. 2, in combination with an emulsion of predominantly linear siloxane which may be wholly or partly fluorinated, and which may comprise cationic groups (p. 2, lines 29+). The reference does not disclose all of the steps recited in the claims with sufficient specificity to constitute anticipation. However, it would have been obvious at the time that the invention was made to carry out such a process since home laundry processes are typically conducted in a laundering appliance with water as the predominant fluid in the presence of a surfactant. The wash water is then removed, and the garments are rinsed. The rinse may be conducted in the presence of a perfumed fabric softener containing glycol ether, as disclosed in the reference. This is commonly done without presorting, and with a variety of fabric types and colors present. Non-nonionic surfactants are notoriously common in the laundering art.

7. Any prior art made of record and not relied upon is of interest and is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
